

STOCKS BOUGHT AT LOW PRICES

Heavy Liquidation in American Securities Caused by the Balkan Trouble.

FOREIGNERS ARE SELLING ADVANCE EXPECTED WHEN THE RUSH IS OVER.

New York, Oct. 11.—The speculative element which has been holding prices of American securities at an advanced price level in the proffered confidence in an early restoration of prosperity met a serious obstacle in the flood of liquidation of foreign holdings of these securities which was let loose by the gathering of the war cloud in eastern Europe. The foreign news was received with assurance early in the week, and there were frequent and effective rebounds in prices each day when the day's business for foreign account has been concluded.

Technical Disadvantage.

Various factors combined, therefore, to make the effect of Europe's political troubles rather more acute in the New York stock market than in the foreign bourses themselves. The weakness of stocks in the New York market was ascribed quite universally to the technical disadvantage of its position and was regarded as a reflection of any likely impairment of inherent values of American securities even in the event of a complete recovery.

The strength in the grain markets was evidence of the increased demand expected for at least a portion of this country's commodities. Foreign demand for some other lines would, of course, be curtailed. On the side of the securities market there is the likelihood that in the early liquidation from foreign banking and financial sources to supply war funds, there would be some flow of foreign investment capital into American securities after being withdrawn from foreign enterprises immediately threatened with damage from war.

Confidence in Future.

TOOK THE GAS ROUTE.

Lincoln Traveling Man and His Affinity Commit Suicide.

Lincoln, Neb., Oct. 11.—B. L. Sheppard, traveling salesman for a scales company, and Mrs. Leona Bray, stewardess at the Lincoln Commercial club, were found dead tonight in the apartments of the man in a business block on North Eleventh street. Gas pouring from the room caused an inquiry by occupants of the block, and when the door was broken down the room was so filled with gas it was impossible to remain in it. The couple had evidently been dead several hours, the husband showing a knife wound in the back of the head, and the wife being that she turned on the gas jet with suicidal intent, though the possibility of accidental death is admitted, but that is the generally accepted theory. Sheppard was one of the best-known traveling salesmen running out of Lincoln, where he had lived many years. Mrs. Bray is also well known. Each is about 35 years old. Both had been married but divorced.

CABINET CHANGES.

Brussels, Oct. 11.—Some changes have been made in the Belgian cabinet. M. Renkin, the minister of justice, has been appointed minister for the colonies. F. de Lathauere succeeded him as minister of justice.

WANTED TO KNOW

The Truth About Grape-Nuts Food.

It doesn't matter so much what you hear about a thing, it's what you know that counts. And correct knowledge is most likely to come from personal experience.

"About a year ago," writes a New York man, "I was bothered by indigestion, especially during the forenoon. I tried several remedies without any permanent improvement.

"My breakfast usually consisted of oatmeal, steak or chops, bread, coffee and some fruit.

"Hearing so much about Grape-Nuts, I concluded to give it a trial and find out if all I had heard of it was true.

"So I began with Grape-Nuts and cream, two soft boiled eggs, toast, a cup of Postum and some fruit. Before the end of the first week I was rid of the acidity of the stomach and felt much relieved.

"By the end of the second week all traces of indigestion had disappeared and I was in first-rate health once more. Before beginning this course of diet I never enjoyed my appetite for lunch, but now I can enjoy a hearty meal at noon time." "There's a Reason."

ALHO' PRIZES HAVE BEEN WON THE RACE HAS HARDLY YET BEGUN

New Candidates Are Entering Herald's Great Election Contest Daily With Promise of Making Things Hum, and Hustlers Already Are Sawing Wood.

Eleven o'clock Saturday evening saw such a flood of votes pour into the Contest Editor's department that getting all checked and properly counted is a task of immense proportions. It is still under way, and with a staff of experts working to their utmost capacity, announcements will be made probably tomorrow morning regarding the distribution of the four special prizes offered to the candidates with the most votes to their credit at 11 o'clock Saturday night. Although the standing of candidates published yesterday morning shows some strong leaders, the outcome is too doubtful to permit predictions.

The special prize distribution was merely a method of encouraging early entry. The contest is still young. The long list of valuable prizes has been unrolled, and it will be several weeks before the final distribution is made. In the meantime candidates are just getting into trim for a great run. Many new names are being added for interest in the contest is spreading. Many persons who have never before taken any part in "voting" affairs have seen The Herald's prizes, read the rules, and, as a result, have been convinced that real opportunity is offered to "hustlers" to win names or nominating others. There is room for more hustlers in every district. The field is open to as many as care to enter. Any one in good standing is invited—all of good reputation are welcome.

The lack of puzzling conditions is one of the attractive features of this affair. Look over the rules and see for yourself. Have you been reading what the candidates already entered have had to say? The apparent effort taken to make the running free from all befuddling conditions has been the subject of universal praise. There are no "ifs" or "ands"; this is a contest where hustling is all that is required. And hustling is going to be rewarded so handsomely that the procrastinator will say, "Oh, I didn't try! I could have won if I'd got in." Don't be a procrastinator—do it now—and come out of the race smiling and the proud possessor of something you have always desired, but never dreamed of getting so easily.

All of the candidates are aiming high. The $5000 home or the Buick model D $3500 automobile are the two big prizes every one wants. There are dozens of other prizes of big value. Those aiming high will win high; but no matter what they win, they will be delighted, for every prize is a beauty.

The impetus given the race by the special prize has been the lesson it taught regarding "hustling." Candidates have worked hard to get in the special distribution, and although all could not win, of course, they have been taught how fruitful "hustling" really is. They have seen their figures climb in most gratifying style and are now in the race wholly satisfied with the outlook. The Herald repeats its invitation to all persons of good character to get in. Once in, there are no restrictions. Any district can be canvassed. No matter where your friend lives, he should see to it that you, no matter how far you are apart, whether it is subscriptions or advertising, the votes count. The election contest has been made easy and fair for all—you can map out your own campaign and carry it out to suit yourself. The few rules imposed make the contest fair and, in being few, easy.

Here is an illustration of the liberality of the contest's rules:

Mrs. Elinor McLaughlin of Kemmerer, Wyo., one of the candidates in District E, has friends in Utah as well as Wyoming. Mrs. McLaughlin was born at Park City, where she is still known as "Ellie" among her old friends. Although her home is no longer in "the Park," she has hosts of friends there as well as elsewhere in The Herald's territory.

Here is what an enthusiastic supporter of a Park City candidate in The Herald contest writes: "Mrs. Marie Hethke, one of the Park City contestants, has been determined to make a good run, and she has a wide circle of friends who will support her in the race. Mrs. Hethke is a business woman, and she makes a friend of every acquaintance. Her places are among those who know no other home. She was nominated by one of these appreciative friends. The traveling man is 'passing the word' for her and she will get votes from widely scattered parts of the country. Mrs. Hethke is a widow, but she is making a comfortable living for herself and her little son, whom she is educating. This admirer of Mrs. Hethke is worth having.

Garfield, Utah's great smelter city, is represented in the contest by two new and enthusiastic candidates. One is Miss Rose Herron, who is connected with the Garfield company, and the other is a young lady. The other is George Bond, manager of the Garfield hotel, a progressive business man who knows a good thing when he sees it, and sees something worth while in The Herald's contest. Both of the new candidates have announced their intention of getting actively into the running at once, and they promise to be heard from shortly.

LAW CIRCUMVENTED.

Cleveland Street Railways to Be Run for the City.

Cleveland, Oct. 11.—The local street railway lines will in future be operated exactly as if owned by the city. The state laws prohibit municipal ownership, but this point was circumvented. The stock of the Municipal Traction company, the leasing company which is operating the lines on a 3-cent fare basis, is to be placed in the hands of trustees. The board of trustees will consist of the board of directors of the leasing company and several citizens who have had no part in the local traction affairs are to represent the public.

It is proposed in the trust deed that all profits accruing to the leasing company shall be turned over to the city to be applied upon the public parks and the lighting and heating of streets and public buildings.
